

2022 Congressionally Designated Spending Dollars for The Shenandoah Valley

U.S. Senators Mark R. Warner and Tim Kaine

- Following Warner and Kaine's joint request, $3,600,000 is headed to Frederick County to support the Frederick County Sanitation Authority's development of a well and treatment plant, which will provide an independent water source within the local community. This project will improve water reliability and increase overall system capacity to a part of the County currently supplied by a five-mile pipeline with no redundant pipes or backup water sources.
- Following Kaine's request, $620,000 is headed to Harrisonburg to help support James Madison University's teacher residency program, which is facilitated by the University's College of Education. Senator Kaine's PREP Act encourages school districts to create partnerships, including Grow Your Own programs, with local community colleges and universities to ensure their programs are educating future teachers in areas where there is a shortage of educators.
